ARE YOUR EMPLOYEES BLOGGING YOU INTO BANKRUPTCY?
Workplace guidelines discussed at NAWBO seminar

VENTURA, Calif.—With the high increase in Internet social networking activity over the past several years, today's employers must learn how to ensure the protection of company reputation and confidential business information while protecting employee privacy and free speech rights. The National Association of Women Business Owners-Ventura County will host a social media seminar 5:30 - 8 p.m., March 25, at the Palm Garden Hotel, 495 N. Ventu Park Road, Thousand Oaks.

Karen Gabler, partner at Nordman Cormany Hair & Compton LLC, will discuss workplace guidelines for employee use of social media, including blogs, forums and social networking sites such as MySpace, Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, YouTube and WordPress.

For more information or to register for this seminar, visit www.NAWBOVC.org. Registration is $35 for members and guests of members, and $40 for non-members. After March 19, the cost will be $45 for everyone.

Gabler has counseled employers on nearly every aspect of employment law for the past 18 years. A large part of her practice concentrates on proactive employment strategies her clients can implement to foster workplace productivity and prevent future legal problems.
